I am very concerned with what just happened. Most sandwich visits to date have included their mom walking them to the home. Sometimes the kids run ahead and then their mom knocks and the nanny opens the door and the child says good night to me as I am on speaker phone or face time video. It is my expectation that the child end with me and say goodbye as the transition happens.

Just now I was very concerned with their dad opening the door and talking about domestic violence in front of Charlie. Their dad then called their mom an idiot —again in front of Charlie, and maybe the other kids I don't know who else was in ear shot.

It's crucial that this kind of commentary not happen in front of the kids.

Thanks so much for ensuring this doesn't happen moving forward.
